Abstract

Youth represent a pivotal demographic, shaping the future workforce, leadership, and societal transformation. Crafting robust youth policies is crucial to inclusive and equitable societies. However, the effectiveness of these policies varies widely, influenced by institutional, economic, and socio-political contexts.

This working paper provides a comparative analysis of youth policies across 32 countries from different regions, including Africa, Asia, Europe, the Americas, and Oceania, focusing on key domains such as education, employment, health, social inclusion, legal frameworks, and the application of Youth Regulatory Impact Assessment (RIA) tools.

Proposing a comprehensive evaluation framework, the paper assesses the extensiveness and inclusivity of youth policies in each country. It also introduces the Youth Governance Index (YGI), which categorizes and ranks nations based on the presence or absence of youth-related policies.

Collecting and reviewing publicly available data and using a theoretical framework based on social inclusion, human capital development, and rights-based approaches, this study offers a detailed evaluation of how the selected countries have supported their young populations. The results reveal significant disparities in the prioritization and implementation of youth policies, pointing to areas of strength and gaps in execution.

By comparing strategies in a systematic fashion, this paper contributes to ongoing discussions on youth policy development and the global landscape of youth governance. While highlighting the value of global benchmarking, it emphasizes the importance of tailored, evidence-based policies to address the specific challenges faced by youth in diverse national contexts.

I. Introduction

Youth form the foundation of any society, embodying the future workforce, leadership, and drivers of change. Achieving inclusive and equitable development highlights the critical need for well-designed and effectively implemented youth policies. However, the effectiveness of these policies varies greatly across countries, shaped by cultural, economic, and political factors. Global benchmarking serves as a valuable tool for identifying and analysing key strategies adopted by different countries.

This working paper provides a comprehensive comparative analysis of youth policies from thirty-two countries around the world, including:

- Africa: Egypt, Libya, Morocco, South Africa, Tunisia
- Asia: China, India, Japan, Russia
- Oceania: Australia, New Zealand
- Europe: Austria, Belgium, Estonia, Finland, France, Germany, Ireland, Italy, Poland, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, United Kingdom, Denmark
- North America: Canada, United States of America
- South America: Brazil
- Western Asia and Middle East: Israel, Jordan, Lebanon

This study aims to map how these countries address key areas that impact the youth, including education, employment, health, social inclusion, legal frameworks and the use of Youth Regulatory Impact Assessment (RIA) in the development and implementation of youth policies.

In order to highlight best practices, identify gaps, and provide insights into the effectiveness of different approaches to youth policy, this research seeks to provide a framework for systematically analysing the policies, strategies, and laws related to youth in these countries.

The study of youth policies has garnered significant attention in recent years, particularly as states recognize the critical role that young people play in shaping the future. Previous research has extensively covered the development, implementation, and impact of youth policies across different regions. Studies such as those by the United Nations (UN)¹ and the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development

(OECD)² provided valuable insights into global trends in youth policy, highlighting the importance of education, employment, health, and social inclusion. However, there remains a gap in understanding how these policies vary across different national contexts and how effective they are in addressing the specific challenges faced by youth in diverse cultural, economic, and political environments.

This working paper builds on a review of publicly available data in order to provide a comparative analysis of youth policies in thirty-two countries. While existing studies usually focus on a single country policy or specific-area, this study offers a comprehensive benchmarking across multiple policy domains and a diverse set of countries. The analysis draws on theories of social inclusion, human capital development, and rights-based approaches to youth policy, providing a nuanced understanding of how different nations support their youth populations.

II. Theoretical Framework and Methodology

The analysis builds on three main theoretical frameworks.

First, Human Capital Theory serves as the foundation for examining education and employment policies, highlighting the importance of education and skill development in boosting the productivity and economic contributions of young people. This concept is illustrated in this paper through a variety of examples, such as:

- Germany's Comprehensive Approach to NEET Prevention: Germany prevents youth from falling into NEET (Not in Education, Employment, or Training) status by fostering cooperation among education providers, social services, employment agencies, and businesses. This integrated approach, which combines vocational training and youth employment agencies, aims to enhance the employability and economic productivity of young people³.

Second, the Social Inclusion Theory is used to assess policies related to health and social inclusion, focusing on how these policies foster or hinder the full participation of youth in society. The paper discusses various youth programmes that aim to promote social inclusion, like:

- Estonia's Substitute Home Service⁴: This initiative supports marginalized youth by offering housing and assistance, ensuring that vulnerable young individuals are included in society and able to transition smoothly into adulthood.

Lastly, a Rights-Based Approach is used to analyse the legal frameworks and constitutional provisions concerning youth, highlighting the importance of ensuring that young people's rights are recognized and protected by law. The paper explores several examples of this approach in action, for example:

- Morocco's Constitutional Provisions for Youth⁵: Article 33 of the Moroccan Constitution of 2011 explicitly outlines the state's responsibility to ensure the participation of youth in political, social, economic, and cultural life. It mandates the government to take all necessary measures to provide young people with access to education, employment, vocational training, and participation in development programs.

These frameworks collectively inform the comparative analysis, enabling a systematic evaluation of how different countries address the key areas of education, employment, health, social inclusion, and legal rights.

This working paper employs a comparative analytical approach to evaluate and contrast youth policies across the selected countries. Its methodology involves the following key steps:

Data Collection:

- Primary Sources: The study draws on official documents, national strategies, laws, and policy frameworks directly related to youth in each country. These documents were sourced from government websites, international organizations, and policy databases.
- Secondary Sources: Relevant literature, including academic articles, reports from non-governmental organizations (NGOs), and global policy evaluations, were reviewed to provide context and support the analysis.

Country Selection:

- A diverse set of countries was selected to represent different geographical regions, levels of economic development, and political systems. The countries included in the study include developed countries such as Germany and Japan and developing countries such as Egypt and South Africa⁶. This selection allows for a comprehensive understanding of how different contexts shape the development and implementation of youth policy development and implementation.

Policy Areas of Focus:

- The study focused on six key areas:
 1. Education and Training (policies to prevent dropouts, promote vocational training)
 2. Employment and Entrepreneurship (strategies to reduce NEET rates, and to promotes young entrepreneurship)
 3. Health and Well-Being (healthy lifestyle promotion, mental health services, fight against bullying initiatives)
 4. Social Inclusion (support for independent living, social benefits)
 5. Legal and Constitutional Frameworks (youth rights in the constitution, age restrictions for candidacy and voting).
 6. Youth Regulatory Impact Assessment (RIA)⁷ (considering countries that have implemented RIA in the formulation and implementation of youth policies).

III. Results and Interpretation

Each country's policies were analysed using a standardized set of criteria within the aforementioned policy areas. These criteria were used to assess the comprehensiveness, inclusivity, and the presence of a policy in each area.

The study also involved assigning scores or qualitative assessments to each country based on the presence or absence of youth-related policies in these areas. This evaluation provided insights into areas where certain countries excel or lag.

Table 1 below shows the scores for each country in the Youth Governance Index (YGI), categorized by overall and domain scores. Countries are listed according to their total performance, from highest (5/7) to lowest (-1/7). Chart 1 shows the marked countries within the Worldwide map.

This comparative study provides a first mapping of how different countries address the needs and challenges faced by their youth through legal frameworks and formal policies. By examining key areas such as education, employment, health, social inclusion, and legal frameworks, the study reveals significant variations in the comprehensiveness of youth policies. Some countries have set up precise policies in certain areas, and have built on them incrementally, in order to set up a comprehensive strategy to ensure the holistic development of young people. Others have much looser references to youth in their legal frameworks and socio-economic policies. However, it is important to observe that these differences do not map onto the type of political regimes where these policies are reported: some democracies have less elaborated youth policies than some regimes that are characterised by lower democracy indexes⁸.

To further analyse these results, the study seeks to highlight some interrelated aspects and issues:

1. At the institutional level, it seems important to consider the relational dynamics between the nature of the state (e.g. federal) and the degree of formalisation of youth policies at the central level (which was the focus of this study). Across regime types, it is key to analyse the effectiveness of youth policies and, more broadly, the well-being and socio-political integration of young people: a higher Youth Governance Index does not necessarily correspond to a higher actual impact – nor necessarily to a higher number of resources devoted to youth policies.
2. Frameworks and policies geared towards youth need to support young people's inclusion in decision-making and in all sectors of development. When countries effectively address this goal and give voice to young people throughout political processes, it is an indication of a democratic pathway. In this perspective, launching effective and inclusive youth policies benefits democracy and it may represent a pathway towards democratisation. The support to youth policies from multilateral organisations may therefore be strategic to address a range of interlinked issues.

Overall, the findings of this study highlight the importance of adopting a multifaceted approach to youth policy, influenced by cultural, economic, and political contexts. As the countries continue to refine their strategies, sharing best practices and learning from the successes and challenges of others will be crucial in shaping inclusive and supportive environments where all young people can thrive. By comparing strategies in a systematic fashion, this paper contributes to ongoing discussions on youth policy development and the global landscape of youth governance. While highlighting the value of global benchmarking, it emphasizes the importance of tailored, evidence-based policies to address the specific challenges faced by youth in diverse national contexts.

Germany

Ministry/ Agency/ Department		Ministry for Family Affairs, Senior Citizens, Women and Youth (BMFSFJ) was primarily responsible for the development of the strategy, but all other federal ministries were also involved.
Constitution		The Constitution (Basic Law, or Grundgesetz) does not specifically mention "youth" as a separate category, but it includes several provisions that are relevant to young people like: Article 7 Right to Education, Article 3 Equality, Article 6 Freedom of Speech and Assembly, Article 38 Right to Vote ²⁴³ .
Strategy		Youth Strategy (Jugendstrategie) the strategy is not tied to a specific time ²⁴⁴ .
Age Restriction to Candidacy and Voting		Any person who has attained the age of eighteen shall be entitled to vote; any person who has attained the age of majority may be elected ²⁴⁵ . Majority begins at the age of eighteen ²⁴⁶ .
Law		Germany does not currently have a separate law in place at national or federal state for Youth. Young individuals' needs and rights, along with other youth policy issues, are covered by multiple laws instead of one specific law ²⁴⁷ .
Youth Regulatory Impact Assessment (RIA)		The Youth check ²⁴⁸ .
Policy Area (Independent Youth Policy)	Education and training	Early dropouts	Framework of action to reduce the number of pupils without school qualifications, ensure that they continue their education and reduce the number of people dropping out of training (Handlungsrahmen zur Reduzierung der Zahl der Schülerinnen und Schüler ohne Schulabschluss, Sicherung der Anschlüsse und Verringerung der Zahl der Ausbildungsabbrecher) ²⁴⁹ .

		Brain drains	The German government is implementing an $82 million plan to enhance its scientific workforce. New programs at the Alexander von Humboldt Foundation and the DAAD aim to attract top scientists and retain young talent. Humboldt is utilizing additional funding of $46 million over the next 3 years to introduce new programs like the Wolfgang-Paul awards. This initiative intends to bring in 15 to 20 outstanding scientists to Germany annually through grants of up to $2 million over 3 years ²⁵² .
	Employment	Neet Prevention	Germany uses a comprehensive approach to prevent NEET status by fostering cooperation among education providers, social services, employment agencies, and businesses. Although there is no dedicated "NEET prevention" program, their combined initiatives effectively tackle this issue. Constitution	The Indian Constitution does not explicitly mention the term "youth" in a dedicated section, but several provisions and articles indirectly relate to youth welfare, development, and empowerment. Like: Right to Education (Article 21A), Directive Principles of State Policy (Articles 39e, 41, 45, 47), Right to Equality (Articles 14-18), Promotion of Education and Cultural Rights (Articles 29-30), Right to Life and Personal Liberty (Article 21) ²⁷⁶ .
Strategy	India does not have a distinct document officially termed as a "Youth Strategy", but the nation's youth development initiatives are primarily guided by the National Youth Policy (NYP) 2014 ²⁷⁷ . This policy outlines the strategic framework for youth empowerment, covering areas such as education, employment, entrepreneurship, skill development, health, and participation in civic life.
Age Restriction to Candidacy and Voting	Lok Sabha (House of the People): Minimum age is 25 years ²⁷⁸ . Rajya Sabha (Council of States): Minimum age is 30 years ²⁷⁹ . Ministry/ Agency/ Department	Currently, the government administration, such as the Minister of Education and Science, Minister of Sport and Tourism, and Minister of Family and Social Policy, hold responsibility for implementing specific public policies. In 2008, there were initial plans to appoint a Youth Plenipotentiary, but as of now, no such appointment has been made. It is worth mentioning that the Ministry of Education and Science is often seen as the principal authority supporting youth structures.⁴⁸⁶. The Polish Council of Youth Organisations (PROM) is an independent, national-level umbrella group of youth organisations and acts as the country's National Youth Council. Established in 2011, it represents 30 Polish youth organisations and more than 250,000 young people⁴⁸⁷. According to its website, PROM's currently most important task is "to take action to create a coherent and modern policy for young people in Poland.
Constitution	The Polish Constitution does not have a specific article that exclusively focuses on "youth" as a distinct category separate from children or adults. However, various provisions indirectly relate to youth by addressing rights relevant to young people, such as the right to education⁴⁸⁸, Equality Before the Law⁴⁸⁹, Freedom of Expression⁴⁹⁰, Freedom of Assembly⁴⁹¹, Political Participation⁴⁹² and Right to Health Protection⁴⁹³.
Strategy	There is no strategy in Poland directly relating to young people, the Polish government is in the process of developing a new national "Strategy for the Young Generation." In 2021 and 2022, consultations about the strategy's content were held with young people throughout the country. No draft document is available yet⁴⁹⁴.

Law	There is no single official document specifically dedicated to the needs and rights of young people in Poland known as the "Youth Law". However, youth-related regulations are addressed in various legal acts such as the Constitution of the Republic of Poland (1997), Family and Guardianship Code ⁴⁹⁷ , Labour Code ⁴⁹⁸ , Act on support and rehabilitation of minors, Education Law, Act on Higher Education, Post-graduate Placements Act, Act on health care for pupils, or the Associations Act ⁴⁹⁹ .

Sweden

Ministry/ Agency/ Department		There is no specific ministry dedicated to youth, however, there are multiple ministries that are responsible for overseeing youth-related matters like: Ministry of Health and Social Affairs, Ministry of Employment, Ministry of Climate and Enterprise, Swedish National Agency for Education, \Swedish Agency for youth and civil society ⁶⁰² ,
Constitution		Term "youth" is not explicitly mentioned in any of the articles of the Swedish Constitution. However, the principles laid out in the Constitution apply to all citizens, including youth, under the general terms of "everyone," "all citizens," and similar language. Like: Chapter 1, Article 2 of the Instrument of Government, and Chapter 2, on Fundamental Rights and Freedoms.
Strategy		Government's bill 'With youth in focus – a policy for good living conditions, power and influence' ⁶⁰³
Age Restriction to Candidacy and Voting		Riksdagen (Parliamentary) Elections: The minimum age for candidacy is 18 years ⁶⁰⁴ . Municipal and County Council Elections: minimum age for candidacy in municipal and county council elections is 18 ⁶⁰⁵ . The legal voting age is 18 years old ⁶⁰⁶
Law		No national law but there are pieces of legislation which address the needs and rights of young people. Relevant legislation includes: 1) Act concerning support and service for persons with certain functional impairments (Lagen om stöd och service till vissa funktionshindrade, LSS) 2) Aliens act (Utlänningslagen) 3) Care of young people's act (Lag med särskilda bestämmelser om vård av unga) 4) Education act (Skollagen) 5) Higher education act (Högskolelag) 6) Parents code (Föräldrabalken) 7) Social services act (Socialtjänstlagen) ⁶⁰⁷

	Brain drains	Sweden has put in place several significant "Brain Drain policies" like: Exceptional researchers and knowledge workers can benefit from a reduced tax rate, decreasing from 40% to 25% for a period of up to 3 years also all researchers' children have the right by law to day-care ⁶¹¹ .
	Neet Prevention	Myndigheten for ungdomsoch civilsamhalletsfragor (MUCF), has the government's mandate to support actors who work with young people who neither work nor study. It includes local and regional actors as well as national ones. The aim is to effectively help young people to establish themselves in the labor market and thereby contribute to the achievement of the government's youth policy goals ⁶¹² .

Health and Well-Being	Healthy lifestyle and nutrition	The current Swedish governing document for healthy lifestyles and healthy nutrition policy is the government's bill 'A renewed public health policy' (En förnyad folkhälsopolitik). Specific target groups in the bill are children, young people and parents ⁶²² .
	Mental health	SKR's work with mental health and suicide prevention ⁶²³ . Främjande av psykiskt välbefinnande hos barn och ungdomar ⁶²⁴ .
	Anti bullying	Municipality Bullying Prevention Model (MBPM) encourages schools to use their own resources to work on their own problems and to come up with tailor-made solutions ⁶²⁵ .
Social Inclusion	Youth Support for Transition to Independent Living	There is no national housing policies designated specifically for young people. Sweden does not have social housing programmes either. Young people with special needs have the right to apply for access to housing with special services ⁶²⁶ .
	Financial Support	Young people under the age of 18 years old are normally the responsibility of their parents, as are young people under the age of 21 who still are in upper secondary education. They do not have the right to claim individual income support ⁶²⁷ . Financial aid (studiestöd) is money young people can receive during their active student years. There are various kinds of financial aid for studies ⁶²⁸ .

Ministry/ Agency/ Department	There is no single entity responsible for all youth-related issues in the U.S., but multiple federal agencies like the Department of Education, Department of Labor, Department of Health and Human Services, and Department of Justice, in collaboration with state governments and NGOs, coordinate efforts to address various aspects of youth development, from education and employment to health and justice ⁶⁸³ .
Constitution	Specific Areas: Article I, Section 2, Clause 2 - Article I, Section 3, Clause 3 - Article II, Section 1, Clause 5 - 26th Amendment - 14th Amendment, Section 1 ⁶⁸⁴ .
Strategy	United States does not have a centralized youth policy, but instead uses various strategies and policies to address issues affecting young people. The current federal youth policy is a result of creating programs in different social policy areas. Many programs for youth were created during the War on Poverty and continue today. Several new programs have been created across different agencies. There are over 50 federal programs for youth in six policy areas: job training, education, juvenile justice, social services, public health, and national service. (1980s-Present) ⁶⁸⁵
Age Restriction to Candidacy and Voting	President: A candidate must be at least 35 years old ⁶⁸⁶ Senate: Candidates must be at least 30 years old ⁶⁸⁷ House of Representatives: Candidates must be at least 25 years old ⁶⁸⁸ The legal voting age is 18 for all federal, state, and local elections ⁶⁸⁹ .
Law	US does not have a dedicated "Youth Law" at the federal level. Instead, there are laws at federal and state levels that cover youth issues like education, employment, criminal justice, and welfare. Like: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Every Student Succeeds Act (ESSA)⁶⁹⁰ • Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA)⁶⁹¹ • Juvenile Justice⁶⁹²

	Employment and Entrepreneurship	Neet Prevention	Youth.gov defines NEET youth in the U.S. as young people aged 16 to 24 who are disconnected from both work and education. This group is also referred to as "Opportunity Youth." They face challenges such as social exclusion, limited job prospects, and higher risks of long-term unemployment, there are numerous approaches to tackle this problem such as: 21st Century Community Learning Centers, Adolescent Literacy Research Network,
